There are three tangible sources still existing of Querini's journey: a first diary of Pietro Querini's voyage is stored in the Biblioteca Apostolica Vaticana; a second Querini's diary is conserved in the Biblioteca Nazionale Marciana in Venice, where there is also a third book - written by Antonio Matteo di Corrado de' Cardini, which contains the stories of Cristoforo Fioravanti and Nicolo' de Michiel, two members of Querini's crew.

Nordland County Council is a public body that governs the Norwegian county of Nordland in the north of Norway, crossed by the Arctic Circle. It extends about 500 km, bordering Sweden to the east, and the Atlantic Ocean to the west. Nordland county has a rich coastal culture dating back 10,000 years, with archipelagos of thousands of islands, fjords and arctic sandy beaches. It is home to the majestic glacier Svartisen, and to one of the strongest maelstroms in the world, Saltstraumen. In Nordland it is possible to enjoy both the midnight sun in summertime and the northern lights in wintertime.

Nordland has a wealth of history, which is well-reflected by the many museums in the region, such as the Viking longhouse at the Lofotr Viking Museum, or the international project Artscape Nordland with outdoor sculptures across 36 municipalities. In Nordland
